The Land and Bond Bill Carried.

The bill devoting the lands to the payment of bonds, was carried last Tuesday, by a large majority, although the vote was an exceedingly light one. Hardly one third of the voters of Minnesota attended the polls last Tuesday. The majority in favor of the bill already reaches 4,000 and returns constantly swelling the number.

Carver County voted nearly unanimously for the proposition, although the vote was a very light one. The proposition will probably have 400 majority in the County.

FENIANS.

The New York World says: The honest laborers and servant girls who give a part of their scanty earnings to the Fenian fund are moved by as real a generosity as when they send the means of support to their aged parents in Ireland. They are inspired by an idea; enlisted in a cause; devoted to what seems to be a crusade for the independence of their dear native country. They are making a grave error of judgment; but such persons cannot be very well versed in the theory of international obligations. In this respect these impudent Irishmen are neither better nor worse than our native citizens. When the so-called "Patriot war" broke out in Canada, in 1838, our native Americans alone the border were in as great a ferment as the Fenians are at present. Our whole male population of military age, from Passamaquoddy Bay to Detroit, were impatient to cross the frontier and fight for the Canadian patriots. President Van Buren issued proclamation, as President Grant has done now; and it required all the address and energy of General Scott, who was despatched to the frontier, to prevent an inundation of armed citizens into Canada. It is not right to judge the Fenians, with more harshness than we judged our native citizens on that memorable occasion. In both cases, a generous, impulsive, uncalculating ardor required the restraining hand of the government.

The Northern Pacific.

On the passage of the North Pacific Railroad bill, the New York Tribune remarks:

"There were some of the amendments to the Northern Pacific Railroad bill which we should have rejoiced to see adopted. But we are not disposed to murmur at their failure; and we gladly accept the good that Congress has sent us without criticism. The company has now the additional authority which it asked for, and the public expect the Northern road to people the great Northwest, making its vast wilderness soon to blossom like those of Kansas and Colorado along the Union Pacific. Its completion—even its commencement—will swell the tide of German and Scandinavian emigration until Minnesota and Dakota will be as populous as those hardy and fruitful races as Wisconsin already is."

Weston, the pedestrian, has at length won a purse of $1,500 by walking 100 miles in 21 hours 38 minutes and 15 seconds, at the Empire Skating Rink, New York. Says the Tribune.

"He stopped nine times during the walk for rest or refreshment, the shortest halt being 3 minutes, and the longest 9 minutes and 40 seconds. His feed, taken at intervals, consisted of beef-tea, coffee, and crackers dipped in strong green tea. After the 80th mile, he took a spoonful of champagne three times, and during the last ten miles he swallowed a little brandy and water about every third round. He used a sponge dipped in bay rum to moisten his head and wrists, and put whisky in his shoe to ease his foot. His quickest round, the last of the 50th mile, was walked in one minute and twenty second.

At Indianapolis, on Friday, Mrs. Elder stabbed T. Stevenson, a lawyer, while at the hotel dinner table, for offensive examination as a witness in a counterfeiting money case before the courts Thursday. The woman was arrested. The wounds were not fatal.

A colored minister in Kentucky was called upon to show how he saved $600 a year on a salary of $300. The Deacons wanted to know how it was done, so they could go to the business. Just because it was proved that he turned an honest penny occasionally draw poker, they had to discharge the poor man.

A Hero of Eleventh Divorce.

[From the Akron (Ohio) Times.]

On the 11th of April, 1866, Samuel Leslie was married at Wooster to a young lady twenty four years of age, Samuel having reached the mature age of fifty-seven. He had possessed ten wives before this, each of whom had obtained divorce from him. She had known him but from the 8th of March to the 11th of April, but he had money; and she said all the blame upon his former wives and gave him her young and virgin heart. She lived with him but a short time when she discovered that he was a common drunkard, and he commenced to display his affection for her by hitting her over the head with a shovel, throwing boiling water at her, driving her out of doors at the dead of night, and other such pet acts as were not very pleasant, to say the least. She applied for a divorce, but he pleaded so warmly and made her so many promises that she withdrew her application, but he soon after renewed his former course and she again made application. This time the suit proceeded, and on Saturday Judge Boynton gave her the divorce and $1,200 alimony. This was the eleventh divorce suit that has been brought against him.

Arrest of O'Neill by U. S. Marshall.

[St. Albans correspondent of the N. Y. World.]

The General, in company with Boyle O'Reilly, walked down the side of the hill and entered the parlor of the brick house, encountering General George Foster, who with his deputy Thomas Failey of St. Albans, was seated in the parlor. He reached out his hand, but the greeting was refused, and General Foster, plating his hand on O'Neill's shoulder, said, "I assure you, sir, that you are a crusade for the independence of your country, and that you are making a grave error of judgment; but such persons cannot be very well versed in the theory of international obligations. In this respect these impudent Irishmen are neither better nor worse than our native citizens. When the so-called "Patriot war" broke out in Canada, in 1838, our native Americans alone the border were in as great a ferment as the Fenians are at present. Plague in the Post Office—Attacking Doctrin.

From the New York Ledger.

Mr. Patrick H. Jones, the postmaster in this city, was recently brought before U. S. Commissioner John A. Osborne, charged with improperly detaining letters in the post office and sending them to the Dead Letter Office at Washington.

After a hearing, Commissioner Osborne discharged Postmaster Jones, on the ground that he had a right to exercise a supervision over the character of letters passing through the post-office, and over the character of parties making use of the post-office for the transaction of their business.

This is a decision deeply interesting to the people of the United States. If the doctrine which he advanced is to be sustained, they are subject, so far as the Post office Department goes, to an arbitrary and tyrannical despotism.

It is not right to judge the Fenians, with more harshness than we judged our native citizens on that memorable occasion. In both cases, a generous, impulsive, uncalculating ardor required the restraining hand of the government.

PERSONAL.—Peter Barthel, of Chanhassen made us a pleasant call on Tuesday, while in town attending a meeting of the assessors.

Herman Miller and Chas. Ludlow of Dahlberg, M. Walk of Laketown, Hon. I. I. Lewis of Watertown, made us short calls the same day.

HOOT-POLES.—We are informed by our merchants and buyers, that over 100,000 hoop-poles were marketed in Chaska during the Winter and Spring, of which a large amount were shaved and prepared for immediate use in town.

Chaska buys more and pays more for hoop-poles than any other town in the State.

DR. ROGERS.—Dr. Rogers and lady, are making Chaska their home for the time being. We hope the Doc, may be persuaded to make Chaska his permanent residence.

ST. PETER FOUNDRY.—We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of the St. Peter Foundry in another column. The foundry has a State reputation and we can cheerfully recommend it to our readers. Mr. Philip Henk is the agent for this County.

FISHING EXCURSION.—The sporting club of this town, visited Lake Minnetonka in full force last Saturday, and returned Sunday evening with a wagon load of fish. We understand they enjoyed themselves highly.

WOOD.—Since the opening of navigation, over 6000 cords of wood has been shipped from our levee to St. Paul. There is still another 6000 cords on our town plat, awaiting sale and shipment.

PROCESSION.—The anti bond men felt sanguine over their victory last Tuesday, that they organized a procession and marched through the streets, with flags and to the tune of the anvil. Go it gentleman while you are young.

THE MILL.—The Steam Mill is under full headway and is turning out 100 barrels of flour per day. Mr. Touey the manager is paying from 75 to 82 cents per bushel for wheat.

Don't forget the grand ball at Matt Logelin's saloon on Saturday next,

FRANK WARNER, Sec. Pro Tem.

The Western Railway.

We are informed by the Minneapolis Tribune, that the contract for grading six miles of the road has been let, and that as soon as the route has been finally located, the contract for grading will be let to the Minnesota River.

Chaska has forfeited the good will of the Company, and we will probably loose the Elevator, and even may not have the benefit of a depot. The action was very short sighted and does not reflect very creditably upon the wisdom of the citizens of Chaska.

PERSONAL.—Col. John H. Stevens of Minneapolis was in town on Saturday, and witnessed our monthly market day. He expressed surprise to see such a large fair. The Col. was on a visit to his old "camping ground" Glenoce. "All again Col."

Mayor E. B. Ames of Minneapolis passed Sunday in town, and settled Dr. Rogers loss. The Mayor is the Genl. State Agent for the Putnam Ins. Co. We believe the loss was settled to the satisfaction of all parties.

Mr. Curtis, Special Agent, for the Phoenix, from St. Paul, was in town last week adjusting Mr. Kolts loss.

Co. Treasurer Hassenstab, and Col's. Baxter and Oberle called on Saturday.

Capt. E. Munch State Treasurer, was in town on Monday.

GOOD HOOS.—We neglected last week to mention that John G. Souter of Waukon, had rec'd from Penna. 2 swifl, and 2 Chester white hogs.

They are really beauties, and Mr. Souter is certainly entitled to credit for introducing them.

This breed of hogs, cost him delivered at Carver $100. Mr. Souter will give our Farmers any information they wish concerning them, by calling on him at his residence near Waukon.

WEAT.—This article has been sliding in fast for the last month, it is now selling at 75 and 79 cents.

CHEAP CASH STORE.—Wm. Glitschka sells fancy groceries "cheap for cash." Give him a call and see for yourself.

MARKET.—Saturday last was our regular "Monthly market day" and it was a big one among the buyers from abroad was M. Welsh of Henderson, W. Gates and Lincoln of Ft. Snelling, Butchers from Shakopee, Jordan, Chaska and Watertown. Business was of course good at the different places of business in town. Carver certainly takes the lead in carves.

THANKS.—We are under obligations to Mr. Hon. E. M. Wilson, N. C. for Pub. rec'd.

NEW P. M.—H. R. Deeny Esq. has rec'd. his commission as Post Master at this place, in place of Dr. Rogers resigned.

Mr. D. will undoubtedly make a good Post Master, and Mr. Ramsey, is a "sensible" for making this app't in every thing but "politics." Mr. Deeny is a very good Post Master.

The retiring Post Master, Dr. Rogers performed the duties of his office faithfully and to the satisfaction of all parties. The Dr. will devote himself to his practice.

THE RIVER.—The River is about on a stand still, not falling but a very little, it is just at a good stage for steam-boats.

RED WOOD.—The S. B. Mankato, went up Saturday last, loaded to her girders with freight for Red Wood. She will return sometime "during the summer."

A CALL.—We were pleased to receive a call on Sunday last from our "young friends" (they being still unmarried) Charlie Lord and Garry DuBois, of Shakopee.

NEW BUILDING.—Wm. Benson Esq. is busily engaged in putting up a good sized residence, near Mr. Letford's place.

He has purchased some 8 or 10 lots in that neighborhood. Glad to see that he intends to remain here.

MAY FLOWERS.

I had watched the silent weeping
Of sunshine, cloud, and storms;
And through weary days, nights of pain,
The sun had slowly on.
And when the sunlight lingered,
And dallied with the night,
And o'er the world cast its quieties,
There came the sweetest light.
I read again the promise
Of a glad Easter morn,
The resurrection of creation.
That comes with the dawn.
I left all in the bright frame,
All in the living spirit.
The liveliest vision came.
My soul on wings of beauty,
With golden boughs and bower,
I heard the sweetest music,
And called the beatuous flowers.
The birds they hymn welcome
Singing their lays,
Their every note a prayer of praise,
Thanksgiving and delight.
I knew another beauty,
These brighter days would bring:
These gay fragrant blossoms,
These flowers of the sun.
Doubtless buds of promise,
Did breath the faint leaves;
Fair others, a vibrant faith,
The spirits silver leaves.
Last after our falling hopes
Fall drooping day by day,
Till in our fading noon, new life,
And joys o'er their decay.
But underneath the dusky shade,
God's sunlight weakens not,
And life is still, though faith
Their fragrant dew distill.
Oh! when the storms of winter
Sweep o'er the land, in gray,
Pestilence, pestilence, hit thine eyes
To everlasting day.
There is no night of darkness,
No gloom of death,
But blooms with radiant light.

VANDERBILT.

INTERESTING Gossip about the Old Commodore—How He Treats His Friends—The Business Advantages of Sons and Sons-in-Law.

From the Men and Musters of Wall Street.

The newspaper belief that Vanderbilt never "goes bankrupt" is not generally accepted by brokers.

There is a tradition that in years gone by, when the Commodore used to ride down to the old homestead on Staten Island he would now and then stop to have the coachmen offer to hold his horse. Sometimes the appearance of the stranger struck Vanderbilt, and he inquired into his history. He had been, it seemed, a brother, but had died young, below Horatio (Glenelg) Vanderbilt's recommendation, and to take count his.

"You will come to the city, will you not?" said the King of Wall Street.

"Nobody could be more grateful than the Commodore." He returned to Broad St., and upon the Commodore's hints, and in due time began to prosper. Brokers soon had faith in this "young" of the great Vanderbilt.

The Commodore's son, the young heir, had been born, and the board and stocks or sold in accordance.

"One day the Commodore was planning a large operation. In came Blank, seeking for a point." "I'm buying," said the railroad lord.

Blank buys bravely—the street follows. Presently down slips the stock, and the Staten Islander is henceforth a stock-duck. "A son of the Commodore's stock-pieces is what the man broken chose to name him."

Similar incidents, trustworthy or otherwise, are narrated by the brokers.

Horace Clark, Vanderbilt's son-in-law, was always a favorite with the stately old gentleman.

"That's the appearance of the stranger," he said. "He is the son of the man who struck Vanderbilt, and he inquired into his history. He had been, it seemed, a brother, but had died young, below Horatio (Glenelg) Vanderbilt's recommendation, and to take count his.

The Poet's Corner.

MAY FLOWERS.

I had watched the silent weeping
Of sunless, cloud, and storm,
And when a cloud with wings of pain,
The hours we'd slowly spent.

And when the sunlight lingered,
And dallied with the leaves,
I'd sit and watch the beauties
Three beams of sister light.

I read again the promise
On a small leaf, and when
That comes with the sun,
I'll let the light go.

It'll be my bright frame,
And to my living spirit,
The lovely leaves came.

Such beams of beauty,
Sweet through the fairest bower;
I heard the sweetest music,
And when the sun was gone.

The birds their lyres welcome
Sang to every light;
Then every voice of praise,
Thanking the living light.

I know another beauty,
These fairies days would bring;
These are the days of dreams,
That bless our fragrant Spring.

Dear, precious buds of promise,
Hail! health to all the earth with life,
And to the bright brother with
The quiet silent leaves.

Leave out all our fading hopes
Left in the sunless bower,
Till in our homes still sorrow sits,
And weeps to their decay.

But much more, much still,
And fairer flowers of holy faith,
Their fragrance fills the bower,
With the dreams of Winter.

Look out the darksome way,
Peer through the clouds, fit up thine eye
There is no night of darkness,
But has its dawn of light;

No grave or buried beauty,
But blooms with radiant light.

Interesting Gossip about the Old Community—How the Rich Friends
"Dinner," Their Adventures of Sons and Sons-in-Law.

From the Mac and Mystery of Wall Street.

The Mac and Mystery belief that Vanderbilt never "goes back on" his friends is not generally accepted as true by bankers.

There is a tradition that he does, by which he is said to rule down to the old houses on Staten Island, he would now then meet a man who comes often to hold his meetings in the appearance of the strongest strains. Vanderbilt, as he incurred into his history, he had, it seemed, a brother in "the street," and having failed, had decided to come to the city I will start you again and the kind of the Central.

Nobody could be more grieved than the Staten Islanders. He returned to Staten Island, and, with his hints, and in his efforts to prosper. Brokers soon had faith in this strategos of the great man.

They watched his movements at the beginning of his career, and he acquired one of the greatest was planning a large operation. To come back, seeking for a point, "I'm buying," said the latter.

Bank buys bravely—the street follows,
the racing down slips the stock, and the Staten Islander is henceforth a "jane-duck." "One of the Commodore's stoolpigeons," is what the trade brokers class him.

Such incidents, trustworthy or otherwise,
are narrated by the dozen.

Horace Clark, Vanderbilt's son-in-law, was always a favorite with the shabby old gentleman, a certain gossip about his unreliable son, not lacking in amusement.

Clark was high-spirited, even when poor.

Having decided to wed the young lady, he called upon his father-in-law, and when he came, he began again:

"Commodore, I wish your daughter in marriage." "Hey?" quoted the money-king.

Clark repeated his words.

"You mean you want my money," growled
Vanderbilt, from his chair.

"And your daughter be a 'flame,'" flamed out the young lawyer, as he heaved him out of his hand, and turned to have the room.

"Hold on, young man," said Vanderbilt, straightening himself on his seat, and looking wistfully, said he, "I hold on. I am a son, you know. I didn't say you should not have my daughter. You may have her. I like you, young man."

But Clark never did make it into the Commodore's company, in indirect ways. He had shars in speculations, and was always well supplied with points.

Once Vanderbilt determined to have his son-in-law, he had him assaulted by the pugilists as the term of it, and after a time the losses were made good. This habit of utilizing everybody has been exercised, it would seem, in nearly every member of the family.

William Vanderbilt is credited with having been favored this way. One day his father came to him and suggested that he had better sell Hudson, as he was too high.

"I'll go to you," said the son.

Nevertheless, William concluded to look about him first. The stock kept steady, with ups and downs of fractions of one cent. The market was not very active.

But Vanderbilt was laying quietly.

"But I'm not so bad, so bad."

"What went out so bad, sir?"

"Oh, I heard that was in you line, and
concluded that you meant long instead
of short."

"Ah, I cracked Vanderbilt's pants, as he butted him up, far out, and stalked out of the door. He has always had a high opinion of William, though."

It is a well-known fact in the Staten Island story, in view of some unquestioned facts.

That Vanderbilt should occasionally visit here and there a member of his party, he had no objection to it.

"Well, William, how much does it lose?"

"I went in at $100 on 10,000 shares. That ought to make me $20,000."

"You had luck, William," quoth the father, trying to look extremely troubled.

"Every hand that I had."

"But I'm not so bad, so bad."

"What went out so bad, sir?"

"Oh, I heard that was in you line, and
concluded that you meant long instead
of short."

An Address to the People of The State.

We publish this week, in supplemental form, the address of the Democratic State Central Committee, to the people of the State. We commend the address to our readers, and ask for it a careful perusal—believing that it is a good sound healthy document, and if followed, a sure cure for the evils affecting our country.

THE FEMINIST RAID

More Secret History—How well the Movement was Planned

From the N. Y. Times, June 1.

Our special correspondent at Ogdensburg, in a letter giving some important additional secret history of the recent Fenian raid says:

I wrote you in March in relation to this affair. At that time O'Neil was here getting his arms and equipments to the front, but no one outside of the Fenian organization took stock in the rumors then in circulation. He told the Brotherhood here that he wanted no men to fight from this country, but at the proper time he wanted them to furnish transportation, which they agreed to, and they performed their agreement well. This thing, though now ended for all time in a great failure, was well planned, but most miserably executed. The intention was not to fight at either Richard's Farm or Trout River. Both were intended as feints. The plan was to get across the line both places and entrench. They intended to have the line close behind, and hoped to be able to draw the whole available Canadian forces—volunteers and regulars—to their front. For this purpose every railroad in Canada was left intact. Had every thing worked well up to this point, another force, by steamer and rail, and every mode of conveyance, would have come to Ogdensburg, crossed the St. Lawrence, seized the Ottawa railroad, and started for that city. With the crossing of the St. Lawrence in relation to this affair, the plan was to have the Fenians suspect a raid that day; they received their orders, and before midnight 200 teams were moving down the river. They had in this section and in Vermont arms enough for 30,000 men. There is now secret somewhere in this direction a splendid battery of six guns. About 5,000 stands of arms have been received near Fort Covington. The result again shows that "The best made plans of mice and men gang aft agley." It requires some stamina to be an Irishman on this frontier now. It has been a worse crime for them to fail than it was to embark on their unlawful mission. Had the plan been successfully executed this whole people would have been completely demoralized, and oblivious to the obligations of good citizens, and shouted, "Go it, Fenians!" As long as there was any prospect of a good strong fight we kept drifting away from our duties.

A young man left Louisville, Ky., a few years ago without a cent, returned from California last week with an income of $6,000 per month, all made by sheep raising.

INDIAN NEWS.

Dispatch from General Hancock to Military Headquarters in Chicago.

The following dispatch was received on Friday morning by Major General Hartshorn from Gen. Hancock:

STOIX CITY, June 2, 1870.

To Assistant Adjutant General Headquarters Military Division of the Missouri:

I have just returned to this point. I went to Cheyenne Agency, about Ft. Sully, and had conversations with the Indians there. Troops have been placed at the old Tongue, Whetstone, Crow Creek, Cheyenne and Grand River agencies. I have visited all except the latter. Gen. Stanley was there a few days since, and everything was quiet. I have ordered two companies to the lower Brule Agency, eighteen miles below Crow Creek agency, on the application of the agent, who informed me that he could not continue his business operations unless troops were placed there. Everything seems quiet, but the future is considered uncertain.

ALLUDING to the fact that the Boston Post, the leading Democratic journal of New England has brought forward Gov. HOFFMAN of New York as the next Democratic candidate for the Presidency, the Minneapolis Tribune says:

He is a formidable candidate, starting with the immense patronage of the State and city of New York to back him—with talents of a high order and with rare gifts of oratory. Taken all in, he has the attributes of a successful politician in a remarkable degree, and playing for a prize, will tax his energies to the utmost. It becomes the republican party to match him, for no second rate man will be able to defeat him. The "coming man" must have positive merits and positive capacity, with a record of public services founded on honesty, or he cannot overtake the most formidable candidate the democracy has had since the days of Jackson.

I request authority to advertise a reward of $500 or $1,000, say in horses, for the murderers of the family on the Niobrara river. I believe we may thus capture them, and at least produce the effect of deterring others from committing like outrages, for fear of being arrested through similar rewards.

Leave by first train for St. Paul.

ADDRESS OF THE State Central Committee to the Democracy of Minnesota.

ADDRESS

To the Democracy of the State of Minnesota:

In view of the fact that we have no State officers to elect this year, and therefore may not have occasion to call our party together in State Convention, and thereby enable it to enunciate its principles in the usual way, the Democratic State Central Committee deem it proper at this time to suggest and urge upon you in nominating Congressmen and all local officers, the propriety and great importance of reaffirming in unmistakable terms our time-honored and unflinching opposition to a protective tariff and all other kinds of class legislation, now constituting the leading features of the Republican party.

Our party, as is well known, has always been distinguished for its opposition to all kinds of class legislation, and especially to that species designed to enrich the manufacturer at the expense of the people. The protective tariff was always opposed and denounced by our party as a device for taking money from the pockets of the people, and the farmer and mechanic in particular, and transferring it to the pockets of a few wealthy capitalists, the Whig party and the Democratic party, the former advocating a protective tariff, and the latter simply a revenue tariff. The Republican party has taken the old Whig side of the question, but has pushed the leading idea of protection to a point, as alvate as, if not even further, beyond anything that the Whig party ever dared or thought of doing. And besides, the Whig party only advocated a protective tariff as a temporary measure, while the Republican party insists that it should be permanent and perpetual, and will make it so long as they retain power.

Henry Clay was the great champion of a protective tariff in the days of the Whig party, but so long ago as 1833, he was compelled to yield to the opposition to it, and the Whig party, and the people of the United States, were in favor of a low tariff, though the tax imposed by the tariff for the benefit of the monopolists was then a trifling matter in comparison with that which is now imposed and adhered to by the Republican party. But the right of Congress to tax imports, and to enrich another class was denied by the Democracy, and the people would not submit to it, and the protectionists were compelled to yield. Even at that time, Mr. Clay, who was supporting the power of Congress to impose protective tariffs, and who had a few supporters, and the Democratic party again came into power. In 1840 the protective tariff was then again repealed, and a purely revenue tariff was established by the party, which continued until the Free public party assumed power in 1844. During this time, from 1840 to 1861, under the operations of the Democratic revenue tariff, the country was never so prosperous, including all branches of manufacturing and taxation never so light and little felt. The average annual expense of the Government during this period, exclusive of the cost of the Mexican war, did not exceed forty-five million dollars; while now, in time of peace, under Republican and an oppressive tariff tax, benefits a few, and expenses of the Government, or attempted, the annual expenses of our government, exclusive of interest on the public debt, are over two hundred million dollars, to say nothing of the amount annexed to it. It costs now half as much to collect the revenue as it did in Democratic days to defray all the expenses of the Government.

When the republican party took control of the Government, in 1861, and the civil war came on, at which the people were thinking of the destruction of the Union without reference to the cost, the monopolists again rallied their forces, and have received from Congress since the republican party has been in power, no less than one hundred and twenty acts and resolutions, each one increasing the rates of taxation upon the consumer—enriching a few at the expense of the many. While in Great Britain the number of articles taxed at the rate of 100 per cent, is only ten or twelve, in this country the number of articles thus taxed is between four and five thousand. Every farming utensil, every implement used by the mechanic, every article of household furniture, every article of clothing, tea, coffee, salt and sugar, and everything that is nearly doubled, and in some cases, is doubled in price by the protective tariff; but the price of nothing that the farmer or mechanic produces for sale is increased by the tariff.

As best, a tariff tax is unequal and unjust, for it well known, it is not applied without reference to what property a man has. The amount that a man pays depends upon the articles and quantity he consumes. The poor man with a large family pays much more tax under the tariff than the rich man with a small family. The rich man, however, the protectionists always impose a higher tariff upon cheap articles, which the poorer man only purchases, that they do upon costly articles and luxuries, which only the rich man buys. And when, in addition, a tariff tax is imposed, not only for revenue, but for protection, as it is called—that is, a tariff to fill the pockets of the manufacturer instead of the national treasury—then the manufacturer makes the consumer pay to the manufacturer, and the manufacturer, and the farmer and mechanic in particular, and transferring it to the pockets of a few wealthy capitalists, the old Whig party and the Democratic party, the former advocating a protective tariff, and the latter simply a revenue tariff.

Our present tariff is not framed with the idea of protection simply, but to give a certain class of persons, especially in the sale of certain articles at their own price. On some of the articles the tariff is prohibitory, thereby cutting off all revenue to the Government, but more than double the cost of the article to the consumer; the increase being entirely to the manufacturer. Of other articles, the tariff greatly reduces the importations, and thereby lessens the revenue, but greatly enhances the price to the consumer. By this means it does not pay his taxes, and from the iron on which he holds his property, last year, about thirty million dollars, and into the pockets of the manufacturers of those articles a bonus of about two hundred and thirty million dollars.

The tariff on articles alone consumed by the people, is only about a tax of one hundred and sixty million dollars, only thirty millions of which went to Government, and the balance to the manufacturers; to protect them, as it is called.

The Western farmer and mechanician finds it difficult to pay his taxes, and support his family in a respectable manner, the Eastern manufacturer, under the monopoly given him by the tariff, is declaring an annual dividend upon his capital of fifty to a hundred per cent.

The protective tariff is now, and now, and now, with a two-thirds majority in both branches of Congress, refuses any reduction or modification. Eastern capitalists, who have grown rich upon the monopoly of the iron industry, and the operations of the slave system of the republican party, present magnificently furnished residences to President Grant, at the Eastern fashionable watering places, and luxuriate with him in fast horses, gorged, rich, fat and splendid entertainments, and as the result, is the foundation whence all spring, the administration is opposed to changing its character.

In his last message, President Grant, in speaking of the present unrighteous and oppressive tariff, says: "But the general opinion is that the subject requires I recommend the postponement of the present."

The cardinal principle of the republican party now is, a high protective tariff, which, in my opinion, is the greatest curse between the great parties. The republicans, we fought upon this question with the Whig party, we are now challenged to fight again with the republican party.

In the pride and confidence of its strength, the republican party, presented to the world, a trade with all nations, and a market for all the products of our labor.

It is estimated that the people of the United States are on an average 100 pounds of iron a year per head. The population of my State is 1,000,000, and we must pay a heavy tariff, but meet it as holds it, and consequently as it is made. On the republican side it is a high taxation tariff for the benefit and enrichment of the manufacturer, and on the Democratic side, a low revenue tariff.

There is no State in the Union more injuriously affected by a high protective tariff than Minnesota. We suffer, all its burdens and receive none of its benefits. The productions of our State for sale abroad, especially those of iron, are taxed out of existence.

It is the pride of our State to be the manufacturer of iron. The tariff on iron, then, each year upon the use of iron, increases the cost of our transportation, it increases the cost of constructing steamboats and railroads and all the means of communication.

But the increased price of iron injures us in the cost of our transportation, it increases the cost of our transportation, it increases the cost of constructing steamboats and railroads and all the means of communication.

We are within the last few years constructed a railroad over our prairie country, and tariff tax upon the industry of the country, not for revenue, simply, but to benefit the manufacturer, far in excess of anything asked by the Whig party, and the recent action of Congress shows a definite and clear intent on the part to allow no modification.

The Whig party, and the people, to modify it, and have raised this banner high above all other issues, and sounded the war-cry, and are marching to its defense.

The New York Tribune says: "Does anyone doubt that Protection against Free trade is the law in order? Could the people of the land doubt they would not do this, the challenges they present of the protective tariff in this language?"

Just let the Free Traders embody their principle in the bill, and whatever the immediate result in Congress, we will go to the country, and the people will think of the protectionists, Schenck's bill pitted against theirs. We challenge the people to stand by their principles, and to support them, and to oppose the people's thrones. We assert that they dare not stand by the bill, and that they will not stand by it.

The Chicago Tribune, also a leading organ of that party, says:

Once more the public mind is turning to the protective tariff system, and the Whig party, once again, becoming pivotal questions, especially the latter, which promises to be the great central party of the country, and the great political contest of 1862. Then, all who are Free Traders will do likewise. In that division, the republican party will be the protective party of the people, and to its just, true to its birth, true to its future.

In claiming that the republican party is the protective tariff party, the same paper further says:

the farmer and mechanic has to purchase, is nearly doubled, and in some cases, is doubled in price by the protective tariff; but the price of nothing that the farmer or mechanic produces for sale is increased by the tariff.

As best, a tariff tax is unequal and unjust, for it well known, it is not applied without reference to what property a man has.

And when, in addition, a tariff tax is imposed, not only for revenue, but for protection, as it is called—that is,

CHASEA THURSDAY JUNE 16 1870.

A Letter From St. Paul.

ST. PAUL, MINN., June 11, 1870.
To the Editor of the Herald.

DEAR SIR.—The Editorial Association of Minnesota has just closed its fourth annual session in this city with a grand banquet. The President for the coming year is Wm. B. Mitchell, editor of the St. Cloud Journal, and nephew to Mrs. Swissheim, of national reputation. There are now eighty-four papers published in the State,—and the number is gradually increasing.

The new hotel—erected as the Win stone House, changed hands before it was completed. It will be opened about the twentieth of this month by Mr. Gilbert Dueher, late of the Chicago Review. The new hotel is to be called "The Metropolitan." It stands at the southwest corner of the City Hall Park,—has a first class frontage of 304 feet and is intended to be equal in every respect to the Fifth Avenue, in New York City.

A severe conflagration occurred at corner of Third and Market streets a few days since, at which one lady lost her life and two men were made cripples for life. The Commercial College was consumed, and the "National Chain" to which it belonged, to prove the faith, strength and sincerity of its links, is about to aid the Principal, Prof. Fiddis, in re-opening. As the burnt district commands an extensive view of the river and adjacent country, the influential and enterprising citizens are agitating the importance of converting the entire front into a grand and magnificent boulevard.

The Feulans of St. Paul have been considerably agitated over the news from Canada—but none have left their homes for warlike purposes. They were slightly bled however by a few imposters who personated distinguished officers from East, and the men lucky enough to make the next assessment will have to be identified under a shanty stamp.

An uncle of Horace Greeley was taken ill while passing through the city a few days ago, and he was supplied with a body guard to see him safe to the end of his journey.

General Winfield Scott Hauseck, of the U. S. Army,—who is reported by the papers as not being a member of the party invited to go in swimming with Gen. Grant—makes his headquarters at this point, and is very popular both with his men and the citizens. He is a handsome, dignified man, and is said to possess military genius of a high order.

The crops of this State now promise to be very abundant. Wheat, corn, grass, oats and potatoes are reported to be in most excellent condition.

The constant and rapid growth of rail roads in the State, is fast attracting the attention of capitalists in all parts of the world, and immigration is setting in from all quarters.

Gov. McTavish, of the Hudson Bay Fur Company, arrived in the city on the 5th inst. from Fort Garry, at the seat of the Winnipeg revolution—on route for England, a state of health he reports all quiet on the Red River.

The Reading Room of the Chamber of Commerce, containing a larger collection of newspapers than any other institution on the face of the globe, is thrown open free to all ; and strangers are made to feel that the jolliest place to visit, is the Saintly City at the head of Navigation on the Mississippi,—where in addition to one of the best libraries in the world, the man of enterprise and refinement can always find a file of the Herald.

Respectfully yours,

OSSIAN E. DODGE,
Secy St. Paul chamber of commerce.

SALE OF MULES.—A large sale of surplus Mules will commence at Fort Snelling, on Saturday, July 16th, and continue daily, (Sunday excepted) until finished. The mules will be sold singly to suit farmers. The notice states that, the mules are well broken, serviceable animals, and will be sold because no longer required.

PRONAL.—W. B. Newcomb of St. Paul, well and favorably known as a former citizen of Chaska, made our village a visit on Tuesday, and greeted many in Chaska with a short call. Mr. N. informs us that his health is improving.

G. A. Du Toit and H. R. Denny of Carver, gladdened the hearts of their Chaska friends by making them a call on Tuesday.

John G. Macteld, of Laketown made our village a short call on Wednesday.

WHEAT.—Wheat is only bringing 95 cents at the present time, and with very fair prospect of going down. It did command 98 cents, but a decline in Milwaukee, caused a decline in Chaska. The Market is very unsettled at present and nothing can be predicted of certainty.

SHIRMP.—W. B. Newcomb of St. Paul, shipped about 50,000 Hoop-poles to St. Louis during the week.

Messrs. Holgren, and Krouse & co., loaded their barges with wood for St. Paul, and left on Thursday.

EXPECTED HOME.—Geo. Scheldmeier, who went to Indianapolis, about a month ago is expected home again this week. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Cook, whose arrival Mr. Cook is anxiously looking for.

ST. PAUL.—Why do not Farmers bring in Strawberries for sale? very few have been brought in this season.

BEAUTIFUL GARDEN.—Capt. T. D. Smith, of this village, has one of the most attractive fruit and flower garden in the Minnesota Valley. It is perfectly charming.

Mr. Greiner has also a most inviting garden.

SECOND VOLUME.—We have just received from Ziegler, McCurdy & Co., a few of the proof sheets of the second volume of Alex. H. Stevens' work "The War between the States." It is printed on good paper and is written in a very interesting style. The book will be issued in a short time.

LEGAL BUSINESS.—We should judge by the number of "Legal, Gentlemen" about town last week that business in their line was good. We pity the clients.

IN CHICAGO.—We hear that Mr. O. P. Bryant of this place is now in Chicago with his patent.

The Committee on the Road petitioned for by Chas. Silz and others reported

—We clip the following "item" relative to one of our worthy citizens from the Glenoos Register. "Mr. Bernhardt Soico, of Carver Co., has purchased of James Kearny, the South west quarter of section ten, in the town of Glenoos. Mr. Soico has commenced to break and intends to build on it next fall."

BUSINESS.—Business has been quite dull during the week. We hope to see it improve soon.

THE LADY'S FRIEND for June is a song and a couple of little children cowering before the wrath of the mother hen, whom the boy has stolen one of her chickens. The painted Fashionplate is very richly colored, and the engraving of "Gathering Violets," is also suggestive.

"If you love me, say so." The patterns of children's and ladies' fashion, hats, bonnets, &c., are just what the ladies want. The literary matter, is fresh and entertaining.

IF JOHNSON'S ANDY LINNEMAN is half as valuable as people say it is, it is not to be without it. Certainly no person, be he lawyer, doctor, minister, or of any other profession, should start a journey without it. "No sailor, fethered, or woodman should be without it. In fact it is needed wherever there is an ache, sprain, cut, bruise, cough or cold."

FARMERS and "Horse Men" are continually enquiring what we know of the utility of Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders, and in reply, we would say, through the columns of the Valley Herald, that we have heard from hundreds who have used them with gratifying results.

MARBLE WORKS.—We publish in another column, the advertisement of the Minneapolis Marble Works, Mears Horick & Son, proprietors.

The business of this firm in this locality, is attended to, by the junior member of the firm, and is always executed with the greatest care, and to the satisfaction of all concerned. Their work in Mt. Pleasant cemetery, has been pronounced of a superior order. Read their advertisement and remember the firm in your dealing.

HASTINGS RAILROAD.—General Le Duc, President of the Hastings Railroad, stated in an interview with the reporter of the St. Paul Dispatch, that the road had not been transferred, and that it was the intention of the present company to build up to the Minnesota River this summer. We hope such may be the case but are in great doubt as to the fulfillment of the promise.

NO. 1 LOST BUT GONE BEFORE.

BY ALFRED TENISON.

One friend, far off, my lost desire,
So far, so far, from me, I'm here,
Oh loves the most, when most I feel
There is a lover and a higher.

Known and unknown, human, divine,
Sweet and sad, and good and wise,
Dear, honest friend that cannot die,
Mine, mine, forever, ever mine!

Strange friend, past, present, and to be,
Loved and lost, and gained and grieved,
Whom I never knew, or dreamt of,
And mingle all the world with thee.

The voice is on the rolling air,
I hear it when I wake and when I sleep,
There is a singer in the rising sun;
And in the setting sun art fair.

Why art thou, then, I can guess;
But though I seem to have no power,
To give or take, or move or move,
I do not therefore love thee less.

My love involves the love before;
My loves are with God and nature thou,
I seem to love the more and more.

Far off thou art, but ever right;

I have no power to move or move,
I prover, circled with thy voice,
I shall no less, though with thy voice.

A HARTRENDING STORY.

Stolen Ride of a Texas River. A Family of Indians.

One of the most terrible calamities of its nature that has happened lately is narrated by the Austin (Texas) Journal. It reads almost like a romance, as it seems impossible for a man to streak twenty feet below the surface of the water, and yet remain alive. It is, nevertheless, a truth, that is far stranger than fiction.

"We published, some time since, a full and minute account of this terrible calamity, which we now correct, with fuller particulars, as we receive the statement from the lips of Brazil Collier, who is now in Austin. The Collier, after four years of military service on the frontiers of Kansas, New Mexico and West Texas, had received leave of absence, and was journeying with his wife and child from El Paso to the Texas coast.

"They had reached the head of the Colorado river, and camped for the night on the bank.

"The river is formed by the junction of the rills of water from several large springs, which have been dammed into ponds by the wild beaver, and are well filled with large fish.

"The stream is so small here that a man can step across it anywhere. The banks were twenty feet above the bed of the water. Fatigued with the long journey of sixteen hours, without rest, when early in the evening, Colonel Collier was aroused by the signs of an approaching storm. The storm was formed and made as secure as possible, and about 9 o'clock a hail storm burst upon them, accompanied by rain and a strong wind.

"The fall of hail was unprecedented, lasting until nearly 11; the stones being of the size of hen's eggs, and striking the tent and prairie with a noise like that of insects.

"The Collier, who was not ignorant of the sudden and extreme overflows to which the mountain streams of Texas are liable, went out into the darkness soon after the storm, to ascertain the effects that had been produced on the river. To his amazement he found in the formerly dry bed of the creek a resistless torrent, loaded and filled with a load rolling bank, filled with stones, and mixed with oil.

"He at once saw the danger, and ran back to the tent, shouting to the escort and servants to turn out. He placed Mrs. Merriam, his wife, in the carriage, and, with the aid of three servants, he rode with it to the higher ground, a distance of not sixty yards. Scurrying a minute had elapsed from the time the alarm had been given, to the time he had run across the bank in waves of such violence and force as to sweep the party from their feet before they had traversed thirty yards.

"The Collier, called for assistance on some excuse, and was soon made to escape from the United States, who had been captured by, but they were too terrorized to head or help.

"Colonel Merriam then abandoned his hope of saving his life by the carriage, and tried to enter it in order to swim out with them, but he was swept down the ice cold torrent like a bubble. Being an expert swimmer, he held his breath, and the bank about two hundred yards below, and ran back to renew the effort, when he received the terrible tidings that the carriage with all its precious freight, had turned over, and filled with a load rolling bank, filled with stones, and mixed with oil.

He placed Mrs. Merriam, his wife, in the carriage, and, with the aid of three servants, he rode with it to the higher ground, a distance of not sixty yards. Scurrying a minute had elapsed from the time the alarm had been given, to the time he had run across the bank in waves of such violence and force as to sweep the party from their feet before they had traversed thirty yards.

Official County Paper.

BY F. E. DU TOIT.

Chaska, Thursday June 30 1870.

BOND VOTE.

The result of the vote on the Minnesota Rail Road bond question has finally been declared, by the official canvass. It is as follows: 28,208 votes cast—majority for the bill 5,608.

The frontier counties polled almost a unanimous vote against the proposition. We congratulate the citizens of the State upon the settlement of this much vexed question.

JUDICIAL COMMITTEE.

The Republican State Central committee, announced through the papers, the following committee, for the new Judicial district the 8th.

D. L. How, Scott, chairman.
E. B. Smith, Le Sueur.
J. M. Green, Sibley.
J. A. C. Flood, Carver.
John Fadden, McLeod.

NATURALIZATION

Upon the consideration of the third section of this new odious bill, the Hon. John D. Stiles, of Pennsylvania, after showing the vexatious nature of the delays which the applicant would be subjected to, thus opposes the bill in the following words: language:

I would oppose it because it is an attempt to revive the spirit of prosecution and proscription that once disgraced the American nation. It is an attempt to revive the old native, and nothing parties that are one have wielded great power in the policy of the country. It is an attempt upon the part of those in power to perpetuate that power by introducing this exciting element of discontent among us. It is the last hope of a demoralized party whose only salvation is to divert the country from the question it has lived in the reconstruction of the nation, and an honest, economical administration of the government. That cannot be done. You cannot revive a revolution against the Irish and German people that now inhabit every section of the union. The last year a vast army of 50,000 men came upon us—nearly four hundred thousand; and the last month more than seventy thousand left, one part to seek a home in this land of promised freedom and equality. The laws of our government are liberal; our laws should be just to all. The extent of our territory in our system of education, all combine to make this land of ours the home of the oppressed of all nations and of all.

Who is willing to stay this tide of immigration? Where are the petitions from our people demanding this extraordinary legislation? No portion of our people ask it, and you would fasten upon them a law unworthy of this Congress. We have not forgotten the alien and sedition laws. We have not forgotten all the forms in which our foreign citizens have been persecuted. The democratic party have always defamed and stoned by the rights of our citizens, whether born here or upon foreign soil. There has always been, and is to day, another party that has had no feeling in common with the oppressed.

In this contest all that we can do is to protest against this bill. But, sir, there is a forum before which we can appear and be heard. If you pass this measure we shall appeal from your decision to the people. You have thus far passed no law to prevent the freedom of speech before the people. If the right shall be preserved, so as we shall be heard elsewhere before our constituents, we shall demand their judgment upon this bold attempt to strike down the rights of our foreign population by the passage of this bill.

News from Winnipeg

We learn from a gentleman who has just arrived in this city from Winnipeg, that when he left there were no signs of resistance to the Canadian expedition, and that a large majority of the people are preparing to give the troops a cordial welcome—not with bloody hands to hospitable graves, but with the best fare the country affords. "President" Riel still remains at the Fort with about fifty followers, but every one believes he will quietly retrace his premises and escape to Canada before the troops arrive. A day or two before our informant left a man named CHARLES NOLIN went into Riel's office, and after a wordy altercation upon a business matter, knocked Riel down, and probably would have killed him but for the intercession of Bishop TACHÉ. Money is extremely scarce, and business stagnant.

Elijah Burritt writes from Birmingham, England, that he will soon return to New Britain, Conn.

Vanderbilt and the Erie Managers.

A curious story is told "on the street" concerning the recent encounter between the Erie managers and Commodore Vanderbilt, in which the commodore put down freight in so determined and reckless a way.

It is said that Messrs. Gould and Fisk, some time ago, foreseeing a rise in the price of breadstuffs, purchased a very large quantity of breadstuffs in Chicago.

The price rose as they anticipated; and the time came for them to ship their wheat to market. They determined to save something on their freight; and thereupon, it is said, began to struggle with Vanderbilt. The commodore, who was in earnest, put down freight on the Central road, with a savage determination to "show those Erie fellows that they must not trifl with him."

The results was, that the tale is true, that Gould and Fisk magnanimously sent all their wheat over the Central road at the commodore's reduced freight.

The University Act.

From the Minneapolis Tribune, 26.

The two following telegrams were received in this city yesterday:

WASHINGTON, June 25.

John S. Pillsbury: The University bill passed both houses. Col. Heaton died this morning.

RICHARD CHUTE.

ST. PAUL, June 25.

To the Editors of the Tribune: The additional land grant for State University passed the Senate. Had previously passed the House.

HORACE AUSTIN.

The bill above referred to is explained as follows: When Minnesota was a Territory 46,000 acres of land were appropriated to found a Minnesota University. The land squandered, and all that was left to show for it was the University building. When the Territory was admitted into the Union in 1858, Mr. Rice, then representing the State, succeeded in securing another grant of a like amount for a like purpose. Since 1863 the measure has been hanging fire in the Interior Department, awaiting authority from Congress to make out the necessary papers. The bill passed the House through the exertions of Mr. Wilson, of Wedon's bay. As the telegrams above quoted show, the bill passed the Senate yesterday. It now needs only the President's signature to become a law.

Favorites in Appropriation

(Washington Correspondence of the Chicago Tribune.)

Although the Secretary of the Treasury and the Supervising Architect recommended a new post office building for St. Louis, an effort failed in the House a few days ago to get the required appropriation, whenas Representative Wadsworth, of Wedon's bay, in the telegrams above quoted show, the bill passed the Senate yesterday. It now needs only the President's signature to become a law.

POOR FARM.

We are informed by those who know that the crops upon the County poor farm, are looking excellent and promise a good yield. Mr. Deus the overseer, has been very diligent in the performance of his duties, and justly receives the commendation of the authorities and the citizens residing adjacent to the farm. Mr. Deus is the right man in the right place.

NEW AGENCY.

Mrs. F. Salter, proprietor of our village Millinery Store, has received the agency of the Sanger Sewing Machine for this County, and has several new Machines on exhibition at her store. The Sanger have a wide world reputation, and we most heartily recommend the Chaska Agency to the citizens of Carver County.

PERSONAL.

Hon. Henry Mads, the able editor of the Shakopee Argus made a short call last Monday, while in town on legal business. Call again.

Hugh Hoy of San Francisco, also dropped in on Saturday, while in town on business.

Henry Young, visited the Saintly City on Tuesday and returned in due time all O. K.

JAS. PLASTER.

the gentlemanly adjuster of the Acton Ins. Co., visited our County on business connected with the Company last week. The result of his trip will be found in another column.

Mr. Saverko, of agricultural fame, was in town the greater part of last week.

Mr. Bandcock, assistant engineer of the Minneapolis road, accompanied by W. A. Spaulding and S. H. Baker, members of the surveying party, made us a short call on Tuesday last.

POTATOES.

We are informed by Chas. Ludloff, Esqr., of Dahlgreen, that he has, for some time past, been enjoying new potatoes of the Early Rose variety.

He dug the first mess, just 4 weeks after planting. Mr. L. will furnish this fall upon application.

PROMPT SETTLEMENT.

It will be remembered that a short time since, the Lienau Bro's, of Watertown, suffered the loss by fire of their Grain Warehouse, together with 1200 bushels of wheat. They were insured in the Acton.

Last week the gentlemanly adjuster of the Company, Jas. Plaster, Esqr., of Dubuque, Iowa, visited the scene of the fire, with the agent of the company, F. E. Du Toit, of Chaska, and promptly and satisfactorily adjusted and paid the loss. Thus will be seen the advantage gained by insuring in a first class company.

WATERTOWN.

In making the circuit of the County last week, we took in Watertown, and tarried there over night. We found business rather dull, owing probably to a rise, and a great flurry in the wheat market at Chaska and Carver, which attracted hither the farmers residing adjacent to Watertown. Nevertheless there was ample sign of life in the live, wide awake business men who here abide.

The citizens were preparing for a monster Fourth of July celebration, in the Grove near Watertown. J. A. C. Flood, officiates as the President of the day, and the Hon. C. H. Lienau and H. J. Peck, Esqr., are to deliver orations. We judge that it will be a grand affair and a complete success.

CHARLES E. VALENTINE.

Charles E. Valentine, principal of Quincy School, at Boston, was run over Thursday morning, by a train on the Worcester railroad, and died the same afternoon.

Elijah Burritt writes from Birmingham, England, that he will soon return to New Britain, Conn.

The weather has been extremely hot, the thermometer going as high as 102 deg. in the shade.

GOLDEN WEDDING.—The father and mother of Ernest Poppitz of Lakewood, celebrated their Golden Wedding a week ago last Sunday. The ceremony was witnessed by a very large number of the citizens of Carver County, variously estimated at from 1,000 to 1500 persons. The Shakopee and Watertown Brass Bands were present and enlivened the occasion by Music. We are also informed that the Singing Society of Young America, headed by Charles Bachmann, sang a number of beautiful songs. Chas. Arhnst, of St. Paul, done the "hotrons" of the occasion in a handsome style. Mr. Poppitz also dedicated his new brick building.

CONTRACT.—Henry Kenning of Chaska was the lowest bidder on the poor farm building, and the contract was consequently awarded him for the erection of the same. Mr. K., is a good workman, and the authorities may expect a good job.

THE CROPS.

—Amid the conflicting reports from the farmers in regard to the wheat crop, we are forced to feel many apprehensions in regard to its safety. The extreme hot, dry term of the last fortnight bodes disaster to the Grain. Yet barley and rye is pronounced by many out of danger. The corn crop will yield largely. Farther report next week.

MINNEAPOLIS RAILROAD.

The Engineering party of the Minneapolis and St. Louis Railroad, have reached the Yorkville prairie, and will encamp in our village to-morrow. The road runs as surveyed down the ravine near Mr. Ticks's residence opposite Shakopee. We will speak further of the survey next week.

NEW ADVERTISEMENT.

—Read the new advertisement of Mr. Henk in another column this week. Mr. Henk is one of our most prominent and reliable merchants. We commend his advertisement to our farmers, and advise them to give him a call before purchasing elsewhere.

FROM SCOTT COUNTY.

—Thos. Muller of Scott County, brought in two heavy loads of wheat on Wednesday, all No. 1. The same wheat was graded as No. 3, at Shakopee, by the officials of the elevator. Mr. McMullen of Shakopee advised Mr. M. to visit Chaska with his wheat, which he did with the above gratifying result. So much for honest dealing.

TRANSFERS.

—Mr. Tessmann of Chaska, has sold his farm, stock and implements, to Jos. Willmann for $3,250. Immediate possession given. We are glad to welcome Mr. Willmann as a near neighbor.

MR. JAMES KENNEDY

tells the St. Cloud Journal that he has found a sure cure for bugs of all kinds upon plants or vegetables. Make a thin whitewash—say, a pint of slack lime to a pailful of water—and sprinkle it through a watering can over the vines. It will, without fail, kill potato bugs, cut worms, or anything of that kind. Mr. Kennedy has tried this for several years, and says it never misses.
